==========
7. PRODUCT PRICES
==========

The price of a product is determined by the product listing and applicable pricing conditions.

Prices may change over time.

A product's displayed price may also be affected by:

- Product variant
- Seller

- Promotion
- Coupon
- Quantity
- Applicable delivery charges
- Applicable taxes or other charges
- Payment method
- Promotional campaign

Customers should review the final order information before completing a purchase.

A previously displayed price does not necessarily guarantee that the same price will remain available later.

Promotional prices may be available only for a limited period or under specific conditions.

==========

8. PRODUCT AVAILABILITY

==========

Product availability may change based on inventory and other operational conditions.

A product may be:

- Available
- Temporarily unavailable
- Out of stock
- Available only in certain variants
- Available only in certain locations
- Available from a particular seller
- Available for a limited promotional period

Customers should check the current product listing before placing an order.

An item appearing in a catalog does not necessarily mean that every variant is currently available.

==========

9. SHOPPING CART

==========

The shopping cart allows customers to collect products they may want to purchase before completing an order.

Adding a product to a cart does not necessarily mean that the product has been purchased.

An item generally becomes part of an order only after the customer completes the applicable checkout and order process.

Prices and availability may change between adding a product to the cart and completing an order.

Customers should review their cart carefully before placing an order.

Customers should check:

- Product name
- Quantity
- Variant
- Size
- Color

==========

The customer should make sure that the following information is correct:

- Product selection
- Quantity
- Product variant
- Delivery address
- Contact information
- Payment method
- Order amount
- Applicable promotional discounts

Once the order process is completed, the order may receive an order number or other reference.

Customers should keep their order information for future reference.

11. ORDER CONFIRMATION

==========

An order confirmation indicates that the order process has been successfully submitted or accepted according to the applicable ordering process.

An order confirmation does not necessarily mean that the order has already been delivered or dispatched.

An order may progress through several stages after confirmation.

Typical order stages may include:

- Pending
- Confirmed
- Processing
- Packed
- Shipped
- Out for delivery
- Delivered
- Completed

Customers should consider that the actual delivery period can be affected by holidays, operational conditions, and other circumstances.

==========

Hulu Beje customer service should aim to provide:

- Clear information
- Accurate information
- Relevant information
- Respectful communication
- Practical next steps
- Appropriate escalation when necessary

Customers should not be given fabricated information.

When a specific answer depends on information that is not available, the appropriate approach is to explain that the information needs to be checked or reviewed.

==========

61. INFORMATION PRIORITY

==========

When different pieces of information appear to conflict, the most current and applicable information for the customer's specific transaction should take priority.

Examples include:

- Current order status over a general order-status explanation
- Current product availability over an old product listing
- Current promotional conditions over an expired promotion
- Current delivery information over a general delivery estimate
- Current refund status over a general refund policy
- Current seller information over outdated seller information

General policy explains how the service normally works.

Specific current transaction information determines what is happening with an individual customer.
