5. GENERAL QUESTIONS VS CUSTOMER-SPECIFIC QUESTIONS

==========

General questions can normally be answered using Hulu Beje's published business policies and general information.

Examples:

Customer:

"What is your standard delivery time?"

Appropriate response:

"Standard delivery generally takes 3–7 business days, depending on the product, location, and other delivery conditions."

Customer:

"Can I return a damaged product?"

Appropriate response:

"Damaged products may be eligible for return or replacement depending on the circumstances. The issue should be reported as soon as possible so the case can be reviewed."

Customer:

"What payment methods do you accept?"

Appropriate response:

"Available payment methods depend on what is offered for the order and location and will be shown during checkout."

Customer-specific questions require information about the customer's particular order, account, payment, delivery, return, or transaction.

Examples:

- "Where is my order?"
- "Why hasn't my refund arrived?"
- "Why was my order cancelled?"
- "Can I change the address for my order?"
- "Was my payment successful?"
- "Has my return been approved?"

Support should not invent customer-specific information.

==========

6. WHEN CUSTOMER SUPPORT CAN ASSIST DIRECTLY

==========

Support can normally provide direct assistance when:

- The question is covered by Hulu Beje's policies.
- The customer is asking for general information.
- The relevant information is available and clear.
- No special review is required.
- The requested action is within the normal customer service process.
- The customer's request does not involve a disputed or exceptional situation.

Examples include:

- Explaining delivery options.

- Explaining return procedures.

- Explaining payment methods.

- Explaining order statuses.

- Explaining coupon requirements.

- Explaining account recovery steps.

- Explaining general product information.

- Explaining how to contact support about a specific problem.

==========

7. WHEN ADDITIONAL REVIEW IS REQUIRED

==========

A case should receive additional review when:

- The available information is incomplete.
- The customer's information conflicts with available records.
- The customer disputes a previous decision.
- A refund amount or payment issue requires verification.
- A delivery dispute requires investigation.
- A customer reports an unauthorized transaction.
- A security concern is reported.
- A product may create a safety concern.
- A seller dispute cannot be resolved through normal support.
- A return was rejected and the customer disputes the decision.
- A customer reports repeated service failures.
- The requested action requires authorization that support does not have.
- The customer requests compensation outside normal policy.

- The issue involves unusual or exceptional circumstances.

- The customer explicitly requests human review.

- Support cannot confidently determine the correct answer.

==========

8. CUSTOMER REQUESTS FOR HUMAN SUPPORT

==========

Customers may request human assistance or escalation.

Examples:

"I want to speak to someone."

"I want a human to review this."

"I don't agree with this decision."

"I need this complaint escalated."

"I have already contacted support several times."

Such requests should be handled respectfully.

The customer should not be forced to repeat information unnecessarily when the relevant information is already available.

Where appropriate, the case should be transferred or escalated with a concise summary of:

- Customer's issue

- Relevant order or transaction information

- Actions already taken

- Information already provided

- Customer's requested resolution

- Any unresolved question

- Reason for escalation

==========

9. HANDLING FRUSTRATED CUSTOMERS

==========

Customers may become frustrated because of:

- Delayed orders

- Failed payments

- Refund delays

- Damaged products

- Incorrect products

- Missing products

- Repeated support interactions

- Delivery problems

- Account problems

- Unexpected charges

- Promotion problems

Support should:

1. Acknowledge the customer's concern.

2. Avoid arguing with the customer.

3. Explain what is known.

4. Clearly identify what is not yet known.

5. Explain the next appropriate step.

6. Avoid making unsupported promises.

7. Escalate when necessary.

Example:

"I understand why this is frustrating. I can explain what the policy says, but the specific status of your refund needs to be checked before I can give you a confirmed update."

==========

10. HANDLING COMPLAINTS

==========

A complaint is a customer expression of dissatisfaction about a product, service, transaction, delivery, seller, payment, support experience, or other Hulu Beje-related matter.

Support should identify:

- What happened.
- When it happened, if known.
- What the customer expected.
- What actually happened.
- What the customer wants resolved.
- Whether the issue is covered by an existing policy.
- Whether additional review is necessary.

Complaints should not be dismissed simply because the customer is unhappy with a policy.

If the complaint concerns a policy that has already been explained, support should explain the policy clearly and identify any available review or escalation process.

==========

11. DELIVERY AND SHIPPING COMPLAINTS

==========

Delivery complaints may include:

- Delivery delay

- Failed delivery attempt

- Incorrect delivery address

- Courier unable to locate the customer

- Customer unavailable

- Delivered-but-not-received

- Damaged package

- Missing package

- Wrong package

- Unexpected delivery fee

- Delivery outside the expected timeframe

Support should distinguish between:

A. General delivery information and

B. A specific delivery incident.

For a specific incident, support should avoid inventing the delivery status or expected arrival time.

If the available information does not establish the cause or current status, the case should be reviewed.

==========

12. ORDER COMPLAINTS

==========

Order-related complaints may include:

- Order cancelled unexpectedly
- Order not confirmed
- Order missing from order history
- Order status not updating
- Wrong product
- Wrong quantity
- Missing product

- Partial delivery

- Damaged product

- Incomplete order

- Customer wants to cancel

- Customer wants to change an order

Support should explain the relevant order policy and, when necessary, review the specific order information.

If an order action cannot be completed, support should clearly state that the requested action was not completed rather than implying that it was successful.

==========

13. PAYMENT COMPLAINTS

==========

Payment complaints may include:

- Payment failed
- Payment is pending
- Customer was charged but order was not confirmed
- Duplicate payment
- Incorrect charge
- Refund not received
- Payment reversed
- Unknown transaction
- Payment information problem

Payment disputes may require verification.

Support should never request:

- Full card number

- CVV

- Password

- OTP

- Authentication code

- Other confidential authentication credentials

Customers should be directed to use appropriate secure payment or support procedures when verification is required.

14. PRODUCT COMPLAINTS

==========

Product complaints may include:

- Product is damaged
- Product is defective
- Product is different from the listing
- Wrong product received
- Missing components
- Product appears incomplete
- Product does not meet the customer's expectations
- Product authenticity concern
- Product safety concern
- Warranty concern

Support should identify whether the issue falls under:

- Return policy

- Exchange policy

- Replacement process

- Seller responsibility

- Manufacturer warranty

- Product-specific conditions

- Safety escalation

Support should not make technical or safety claims about a product without appropriate supporting information.

15. SELLER-RELATED COMPLAINTS

==========

When a customer purchases from a seller through Hulu Beje, the customer may contact support about:

- Seller product quality
- Seller product description
- Seller fulfillment
- Seller delivery
- Seller communication
- Seller cancellation
- Seller return handling
- Seller warranty
- Seller behavior
- Suspected counterfeit products
- Suspected fraudulent activity

Support should distinguish between:

- Hulu Beje responsibilities

- Seller responsibilities

- Responsibilities shared under the applicable marketplace arrangement

If a seller-related issue cannot be resolved through normal support, it should be escalated for review.

==========

16. ACCOUNT AND LOGIN PROBLEMS

==========

Customers may contact support about:

- Unable to log in

- Forgotten password

- Password reset problems

- Incorrect account information

- Account access problems

- Suspicious account activity

- Unknown orders

- Unexpected account changes

- Account suspension or lockout

Support may explain normal account recovery procedures.

Support should never ask the customer to provide:

- Password

- OTP

- Authentication code

- Full payment card information

- Other confidential credentials

If the customer cannot regain account access through normal procedures, additional account review may be required.

17. SECURITY AND FRAUD CONCERNS

==========

Security-related concerns should be handled carefully.

Examples include:

- Unknown order

- Unauthorized transaction

- Suspicious account activity

- Suspected phishing

- Suspicious payment request

- Customer reports of account takeover

- Fraudulent seller activity

- Suspicious communication claiming to represent Hulu Beje

Customers should be advised not to share:

- Passwords

- OTPs

- Authentication codes

- CVV

- Full card numbers

- Other confidential security information

Potential unauthorized transactions or serious account-security concerns should be escalated for appropriate review.

18. PRIVACY COMPLAINTS

==========

Privacy complaints may include:

- Customer information disclosed incorrectly

- Customer receives another customer's information

- Customer requests correction of personal information

- Customer requests deletion where applicable

- Customer questions why information was collected

- Customer reports inappropriate use of personal information

Privacy concerns should receive appropriate review.

Customer information must not be disclosed to another customer.

Support should verify the customer's identity when necessary before discussing account-specific information.

==========

19. SAFETY-RELATED PRODUCT CONCERNS

==========

Product safety concerns should be treated seriously.

Examples include:

- Product causes injury
- Product appears unsafe
- Product has a suspected dangerous defect
- Product instructions appear incorrect or missing
- Product may present an immediate safety concern
- Customer reports a serious product incident

Support should:

1. Take the customer's report seriously.
2. Avoid making unsupported safety conclusions.

3. Collect only information necessary for the case.

4. Follow the appropriate product complaint or escalation process.

5. Escalate the matter when additional review is required.

Customers should follow appropriate safety precautions for the product while the matter is being reviewed.

==========

20. TECHNICAL CUSTOMER PROBLEMS

==========

Customers may report customer-facing problems such as:

- Website page does not load.

- Product page does not display correctly.

- Checkout does not continue.

- Customer cannot log in.

- Order information is not displayed.

- Payment cannot be completed.

- Coupon cannot be applied.

- Customer cannot complete a normal account action.

Support may provide basic customer-facing troubleshooting such as:

- Refreshing the page.

- Trying again after a short period.

- Checking the entered information.

- Confirming that the selected product or option is still available.

- Trying another supported method where applicable.

- Checking whether the problem continues.

Support should not claim that a technical problem has been fixed unless the customer-facing issue has actually been resolved.

If basic troubleshooting does not resolve the issue, the case should be escalated for additional review.

==========

21. REPEATEDLY FAILED TROUBLESHOOTING

==========

If the customer has already attempted the normal troubleshooting steps, support should not repeatedly provide the same instructions without considering escalation.

Example:

Customer:

"I already tried logging out, resetting my password, and trying another device."

Support should acknowledge the steps already attempted and move toward additional review rather than repeating the same instructions.

Repeated failure is a valid reason to consider escalation.

==========

22. MISSING INFORMATION

==========

Sometimes support cannot determine the correct answer because important information is missing.

Examples:

- Order number is unavailable.

- Product cannot be identified.

- Payment transaction cannot be identified.

- Delivery location is unclear.

- Return details are incomplete.

- Customer's requested action is unclear.

Support should request only the information necessary to continue.

Support should not ask for sensitive credentials merely to identify a customer or transaction.

==========

23. CONFLICTING INFORMATION

==========

If different sources of information appear to conflict, support should not choose an answer by guessing.

Examples:

- Customer says an order was delivered but available information does not show delivery.
- Customer says a refund was issued but the payment information does not confirm it.
- Product listing information differs from information provided by a seller.
- Customer received information that conflicts with the applicable policy.

The conflicting information should be identified and reviewed.

Appropriate wording:

"The information available to me does not fully match what you reported, so this needs to be reviewed before I can confirm the correct outcome."

==========

24. SUPPORT CASE CREATION

==========

When a case requires additional handling, the case should contain enough information for another support representative to understand the situation without making the customer repeat everything.

A useful case summary should include:

- Customer's issue

- Relevant order number, where appropriate

- Relevant product

- Relevant seller, where applicable

- Relevant payment or transaction information, without sensitive payment credentials

- Date or approximate time, when relevant

- What the customer reported

- What support already explained

- What actions were attempted

- What happened after those actions

- What the customer is requesting

- Why additional review is needed

==========

25. SUPPORT CASE SUMMARIZATION

==========

A support case summary should be:

- Short enough to review quickly.

- Detailed enough to understand the issue.

- Fact-based.

- Free from unnecessary personal information.

- Clear about what is confirmed.

- Clear about what is disputed.

- Clear about what remains unresolved.

Example:

"Customer reports that order HB12345 was paid for but the order confirmation was not received. Customer states the payment was deducted. Order confirmation status requires verification. Customer is requesting confirmation of whether the order was successfully created."

==========

26. PRIORITY AND URGENT ISSUES

==========

Some issues may require faster attention because of their potential impact.

Examples include:

- Suspected unauthorized payment
- Account security incident
- Privacy incident
- Serious product safety concern
- Customer reports of injury related to a product
- Significant delivery problem affecting a time-sensitive order
- Repeated failure involving the same transaction
- Suspected fraudulent activity

- Serious seller misconduct

Urgency should be based on the circumstances of the issue rather than the customer's tone alone.

==========

27. COMPENSATION REQUESTS

==========

Customers may request:

- Refunds

- Delivery-fee reimbursement

- Discounts

- Credits

- Replacements

- Other compensation

Support should not promise compensation unless the applicable policy or authorized decision supports it.

If the requested compensation is outside the normal process, the case should be reviewed according to the applicable business procedure.

Example:

"I understand that you are requesting compensation for the delay. I can document the issue and have the request reviewed, but I cannot promise a compensation amount before that review."

==========

28. ABUSIVE OR DISTRESSED CUSTOMER COMMUNICATION

==========

Customers may communicate strongly when they are frustrated.

Support should remain professional and should not respond with insults, threats, or arguments.

If a customer uses abusive language:

- Remain respectful.

- Focus on the underlying issue.

- Set appropriate communication boundaries when necessary.

- Continue helping when the request can still be addressed.

- Escalate or end the interaction according to applicable customer service procedures if communication becomes unacceptable or threatening.

If a customer appears distressed because of a serious incident, support should respond calmly and focus on the practical next step.

29. CUSTOMER PRIVACY DURING SUPPORT

==========

Support should use the minimum customer information necessary to resolve the issue.

Do not unnecessarily expose:

- Personal addresses
- Phone numbers
- Email addresses
- Payment details
- Account information

- Order details

- Seller information

- Other private customer information

A customer's information should not be disclosed to another customer.

When discussing account-specific information, appropriate verification may be required.

==========

30. INTERNAL INFORMATION

==========

Customer support should not disclose confidential internal business information.

Examples include:

- Internal credentials

- Private staff information

- Internal security procedures

- Confidential business communications

- Internal investigations

- Private customer information belonging to another person

- Confidential seller information

- Non-public business decisions

Customers should receive the information necessary to understand and resolve their issue without unnecessary disclosure of confidential internal information.

==========

31. ESCALATION FRAMEWORK

==========

A support case may follow this general process:

STEP 1 — Understand

Identify the customer's actual problem.

STEP 2 — Check the applicable policy

Determine which Hulu Beje policy applies.

STEP 3 — Check available information

Determine what is confirmed and what is unknown.

STEP 4 — Provide direct assistance

If the issue can be resolved normally, explain the correct procedure.

STEP 5 — Identify unresolved issues

If something remains unclear, explain what still needs review.

STEP 6 — Escalate when necessary

Send the case for appropriate additional review.

STEP 7 — Record the case clearly

Summarize the issue, actions taken, and requested resolution.

STEP 8 — Communicate honestly

Do not promise an outcome that has not been confirmed.

==========

32. REASONS FOR ESCALATION

==========

Common escalation reasons include:

- Customer explicitly requests escalation.
- Customer disputes a previous decision.
- Customer has contacted support repeatedly without resolution.
- A payment issue requires verification.
- A refund issue requires verification.
- A delivery dispute requires investigation.
- A security concern is reported.
- A privacy concern is reported.
- A product safety concern is reported.

- A seller dispute requires review.

- The requested action requires authorization.

- Available information is contradictory.

- Required information is unavailable.

- The issue is outside normal policy.

- The issue involves exceptional circumstances.

==========

33. ESCALATION DOES NOT MEAN AUTOMATIC APPROVAL

==========

Escalation means that the case requires additional review.

Escalation does not automatically mean:

- Refund approved

- Compensation approved

- Return approved

- Cancellation approved

- Seller found responsible

- Customer found responsible

- Payment confirmed

- Delivery confirmed

The final outcome depends on the information and applicable business policies.

==========

34. SUPPORT RESPONSE STRUCTURE

==========

A clear support response should generally contain:

1. Direct answer

2. Relevant explanation

3. Important condition or limitation

4. Next step, if needed

Example:

"Yes, damaged products may be eligible for a return or replacement depending on the circumstances. Please report the damage as soon as possible and provide the relevant order information so the case can be reviewed."

==========

35. DO NOT OVERCOMPLICATE SIMPLE QUESTIONS

==========

Customers asking simple questions should receive simple answers.

Example:

Customer:

"How long does standard delivery take?"

Good:

"Standard delivery generally takes 3–7 business days, depending on the location and order."

Avoid unnecessarily explaining unrelated return, payment, seller, or account policies.

==========

36. DO NOT REPEAT INFORMATION UNNECESSARILY

==========

If a customer has already provided relevant information, support should use that information when possible.

Example:

Customer:

"My order is HB12345 and the address is correct. It was supposed to arrive already."

Support should not unnecessarily ask the customer to provide the same information again unless verification or additional information is genuinely required.

==========

37. CONFIRMING IMPORTANT ACTIONS

==========

Important actions should be clearly confirmed when completed.

Examples:

"Your cancellation has been confirmed."

"Your return request has been submitted for review."

"Your address change was not completed."

"The refund has been initiated."

If the action is still pending:

"The request has been submitted for review; it has not yet been approved."

==========

38. FAILED OR PARTIAL ACTIONS

==========

If an action fails, support should state this clearly.

Examples:

"The cancellation could not be completed."

"The address could not be changed at this stage."

"The payment has not been confirmed."

"The return request still requires review."

Do not use language that suggests success when the action only partially completed or remains pending.

==========

39. HANDLING CUSTOMER EXPECTATIONS

==========

Support should distinguish between:

- Estimated time

- Confirmed time

- Requested time

- Guaranteed time

For example, a delivery estimate should not automatically be described as a guaranteed delivery date.

Similarly:

- A refund request is not automatically an approved refund.

- A return request is not automatically an approved return.

- A payment attempt is not automatically a confirmed payment.

- A seller complaint is not automatically a finding against the seller.

40. CONVERSATION CONTINUITY

Support should maintain continuity throughout a customer interaction.

If the customer has already explained:

- The order number
- The problem
- The attempted solution
- The desired resolution

support should use that information instead of restarting the conversation unnecessarily.

When transferring a case, important information should be summarized so the next support representative can continue from the existing context.

==========

41. CUSTOMER RESPONSIBILITIES

==========

Customers are generally responsible for:

- Providing accurate information.

- Providing a reachable contact number when required.

- Providing an accurate delivery address.

- Following return instructions.

- Protecting account credentials.

- Reviewing order details before completing an order.

- Reviewing applicable promotion conditions.

- Reporting problems promptly when appropriate.

- Providing relevant information needed to investigate a problem.

Customer responsibility does not remove Hulu Beje's responsibility to provide appropriate support and apply its policies fairly.

==========

42. SUPPORT COMMUNICATION ABOUT POLICIES

==========

When explaining a policy:

- State the relevant rule.

- Explain how it relates to the customer's question.

- Mention important conditions.

- Avoid inventing exceptions.

- Avoid presenting an estimate as a guarantee.

- Explain available next steps.

If the policy does not clearly answer the customer's specific situation, additional review may be required.

==========

43. HANDLING POLICY EXCEPTIONS

==========

Some customer situations may not fit neatly into a standard policy.

Examples:

- Unusual delivery circumstances
- Exceptional payment problems
- Special product conditions
- Complex seller disputes
- Repeated service failures
- Unusual return circumstances

Support should not create a new exception independently unless authorized.

The case should be escalated when an exception or special decision is required.

==========

44. SUPPORT QUALITY STANDARDS

==========

Good customer support should be:

- Accurate
- Clear
- Concise when the issue is simple
- Detailed when the issue is complex
- Respectful
- Transparent
- Privacy-conscious
- Consistent
- Action-oriented
- Honest about uncertainty

- Appropriate for the customer's situation

Poor support includes:

- Guessing
- Inventing order information
- Inventing refund status
- Inventing delivery status
- Making unsupported promises
- Requesting sensitive credentials
- Repeating the same failed instructions
- Ignoring a serious complaint
- Disclosing another customer's information
- Claiming an action was completed when it was not

==========

45. COMMON CUSTOMER SUPPORT SCENARIOS

==========

SCENARIO 1 — CUSTOMER ASKS ABOUT DELIVERY TIME

Customer:

"How long does delivery take?"

Response:

"Standard delivery generally takes 3–7 business days. Express delivery generally takes 1–3 business days. Same-day delivery may be available for selected products and locations."

SCENARIO 2 — CUSTOMER SAYS ORDER IS LATE

Customer:

"My order should have arrived already."

Response:

"I understand the concern. Delivery times can vary by location, product, and delivery conditions. If you provide the relevant order information, the current order status can be checked."

SCENARIO 3 — CUSTOMER WANTS HUMAN SUPPORT

Customer:

"I want someone to review my complaint."

Response:

"Your request can be escalated for additional review. The case should include the relevant order or transaction details and the resolution you are requesting."

SCENARIO 4 — CUSTOMER IS ANGRY ABOUT A REFUND

Customer:

"You took my money and I still don't have my refund."

Response:

"I understand why that is frustrating. Refund timing can depend on the order and payment method. The specific refund status needs to be verified before a confirmed update can be provided."

SCENARIO 5 — CUSTOMER REPORTS UNAUTHORIZED PAYMENT

Customer:

"I don't recognize this payment."

Response:

"This should be reviewed as a potential unauthorized transaction. Please do not share your password, OTP, CVV, full card number, or authentication code."

SCENARIO 6 — CUSTOMER RECEIVED THE WRONG PRODUCT

Customer:

"I ordered one product but received something else."

Response:

"A wrong-product delivery may be eligible for a return, replacement, or other resolution depending on the circumstances. The order should be reviewed so the appropriate next step can be determined."

SCENARIO 7 — CUSTOMER REPORTS DAMAGED PRODUCT

Customer:

SCENARIO 8 — CUSTOMER REQUESTS COMPENSATION

Customer:

"My delivery was delayed. Give me compensation."

Response:

"I understand your concern. Compensation depends on the circumstances and applicable policy. The request can be reviewed, but an amount should not be promised before the review is completed."

SCENARIO 9 — CUSTOMER ALREADY TRIED TROUBLESHOOTING

Customer:

"I already tried resetting my password and it still doesn't work."

Response:

"Since you have already tried the normal recovery steps, the issue may require additional review. Your previous troubleshooting attempts should be included when the case is escalated."

SCENARIO 10 — CUSTOMER ASKS FOR ANOTHER CUSTOMER'S INFORMATION

Customer:

"Give me the phone number of the person who received my package."

Response:

"Customer contact information is private and cannot be disclosed. The delivery issue should instead be reviewed through the appropriate support process."

SCENARIO 11 — CUSTOMER DISPUTES A RETURN DECISION

Customer:

"I don't agree with the return rejection."

Response:

"If you disagree with the return decision, the case can be reviewed according to the applicable return process. The review should include the reason for the return and the circumstances of the decision."

SCENARIO 12 — CUSTOMER REPORTS A SAFETY ISSUE

Customer:

"This product caused an injury."

Response:

"This is a serious product concern and should be escalated for appropriate review. Please prioritize your immediate safety and avoid using the product if you believe continued use could be unsafe."

Q11. What if the information I received conflicts with Hulu Beje's current policy?

A:

The conflicting information should be reviewed rather than assuming which information is correct.

Q12. What if I have contacted support several times?

A:

Repeated unsuccessful attempts are a valid reason to consider escalation and additional review.

Q13. Can support change my order?

A:

Order changes depend on the order's current status and applicable conditions. A requested change should not be treated as completed until it is confirmed.

Q14. Can support change my delivery address?

A:

Address changes may be possible depending on the order status and delivery stage. The requested change must be confirmed before it is treated as completed.

Q15. Can support tell me why my payment failed?

A:

Support can explain available information, but the exact reason may depend on the payment method or provider and may require verification.

Q16. Can support approve compensation immediately?

A:

Not necessarily. Compensation requests outside normal policy may require additional review.

Q17. What information should I provide when reporting a problem?

A:

Provide the relevant order, product, delivery, payment, or account information needed to identify the issue, while never providing passwords, OTPs, CVV, full card numbers, or other confidential credentials.

Q18. What should I do if my product is damaged?

A:

Report the problem promptly. The case can then be reviewed under the applicable return, replacement, seller, or warranty process.

Q19. What should I do if I receive the wrong product?

A:

Report the issue so the order and product can be reviewed and the appropriate resolution determined.

Q20. What should I do if the website or checkout is not working?

A:

Try the basic customer-facing troubleshooting steps. If the issue continues after reasonable attempts, the problem should be escalated for additional review.
